MEMORANDUM FOR Army Health Services Human Resource Managers in all Components

SUBJECT: Consultant's Message 2002-01

1. I am greatly pleased and honored to be appointed by The Surgeon General as his Health Services Human Resources Consultant. It is a humbling experience to be told that The Surgeon General is looking to you personally for "significant advances that will engender the provision of quality healthcare for our beneficiaries." Obviously, I cannot do that alone; I look forward to working with human resource managers across the full spectrum of the AMEDD.
2. My heartfelt appreciation goes to COL Frank Blakely for his outstanding service as consultant for the last several years. COL Blakely was there for us all in a period of tremendous transformation, even before Transformation. His dedication to the AMEDD and its members has positioned us for great things in the future. I wish him the best of luck in his future endeavors.
3. BG Ursone has provided very clear guidance to newly appointed consultants in the Medical Service Corps, guidance which will assist each of us in being more effective members of our profession. You will see the fruits of this guidance on the Web, in your mailboxes, and in your careers. Look for it, consider it, and see where our Corps is going.
4. I intend to publish a Consultant's Message regularly, at least once per quarter. Look for them on my site at the MSC Homepage (www.armymedicalservicecorps.com) and in your email. Keeping people informed is one of our core competencies; I expect you to hold me to that.
5. Consulting is a two-way street. I will address career progression for our officers and civilians and trends and advances in manning the medical force. I routinely communicate with the senior personnel officers in USAMEDCOM's Regional Medical Commands and other Major Subordinate Commands, and I rely upon them to share this personnel information down to the lowest level of our profession. I encourage and expect you to communicate with me on the issues that you are facing in your organizations and careers. Email me at larry.campbell1@us.army.mil or call me at 703-681-3174 (DSN 471).
